Kelly Exhibit Highlights Unique Role of the Sisters of Service in Canada

THE BIG MAPS:

Sisters of Service as Canadian Trailblazers, an exciting new exhibition is at the John M. Kelly Library, documenting the history of an unconventional and uniquely Canadian women's religious institute whose members engaged in groundbreaking work across the country.

The Big Maps opened on October 23 with a talk by MARK MCGOWAN on the pioneering vision of Catherine Donnelly, who founded the Order, and the role of the Sisters of Service (SOS) in welcoming, housing, and teaching new Canadians from diverse cultural backgrounds. This exhibit explores the SOS and their contributions to Canadian social, religious, and women's history. The SOS are a uniquely Canadian, untraditional women's religious institute whose century of work spanned IMMIGRATION Services, Teaching, Nursing, Social Work and the story goes on —
